Outgoing SGA president proud of year's success

On Tuesday night, outgoing SGA President Mark White and Vice President Jared Mont passed the gavel to President-elect Brandon Hollinger and Vice President select Lopin White in a base-loaded ceremony. However, the ceremony didn't dictate anything official, as Hollinger showed up to take office until May 5.

The White/Hollinger admission interview reflected on their year in office, celebrating the completion of nearly all of their goals.

"It's been a really great year. We've only given a year to make a difference, and we tried to do that starting off," White said.

While the admissions interview focused on their year in office, celebrating the completion of nearly all of their goals, there were a few tasks they accomplished. They were "just really glad we could do it and did it the best it could be."

While White and Stout took the night to relax and reflect, Bertolucci expressed anxiety over the task ahead, "I'm stressing out because we're making one cabinet right now, and we've received over 160 applications, and it's really difficult."

Animal Rights Foundation of Florida protests Shriners' treatment of animals

SCOTT GARLEY
Contributing Writer

As families poured into the UCF arena to see circus acts Saturday, many couldn't help but notice the Shrine clowns stretched out near the North Parking Garage. It read, "Circus Frops from Shriners Net Sick!"

The sign's authors, Carlos and Bryan Whelan of the Animal Rights Foundation of Florida, said they support the mission of the Shriners, but not how their circus treats animals.

They spent a day at a tent set up across from the new convocation center, passing out information on the history of the Royal Bamshied Circus, the circus currently based by the Shriners. Their leaflet also included information about where money raised by the circus goes.

"People come here because they believe they're doing something good for the children's hospital," Bryan said.

"Unfortunately they don't realize that the funds don't go to the children's hospital, they go to the Shriners' operating fund," Bryan cited a New York Times article from March 2007 in which research was done to see how Shriners' money was spent.

"The article stated, 'only 1 percent of the Shrine hospitals' operating income came from money raised by Shrine temples and members' dues. The bulk is supplied by the hospitals' $9 billion endowment.'"

"If the Shriners wanted to continue doing circus, Bryan said, he would like to see them done without animals."

"There's a large selection of people that would be willing to come here and do this for them," Bryan said.

He gave the example of Cirque du Soleil at Disney. "They put on an amazing show, and it's all volunteer, all human performers," he said. "These animals aren't here by choice."

Regarding the treatment of the elephants, Carlos said the Royal Hanneford Circus has an interdisciplinary care for their elephants. "They've been cited at least seven times for failing to provide adequate care for their elephants," he said, according to a fact sheet put out by People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals.

"Our goal is to get the circus off the campus, or at least to get the animals off the campus," Bryan said. "We're hoping to work with the present administration and the president, not only to hopefully convince them to invite the Shrine circus, but the animals in the circus, too." Dianne Johnson and her family passed the ARFF tent every time they went to the circus.

"I don't change my mind," George said. "We always supported the Shriners. Just the hospital alone outweighs everything else."

Throughout the day the Shriners stood their post and were later joined by another group of people, the Florida Coalition for Animal Rights. The group is committed to protesting as long as the circus continues.

"There are a lot of ways that Shriners can do something that don't involve the animals," Bryan said. "All we're asking them to do is get rid of the circus, and then we'll stop putting out the tents."

High water turned expected as parcs again to face flooding
PARIS - France began choosing a new president Sunday with millions of voters unable to make their voices heard.

The successor to Jacques Chirac, ending 18 years at the head of state at the close of his second term, will face a large and restless economy and an alienated young Muslim population, among a host of problems.

Only four of the 12 candidates, including conservative front-runner Nicolas Sarkozy and Socialist Segolene Royal, who was No. 2 in polls, had a real chance of landing a spot in a final round of voting May 2.

Turnout was likely to be high, with 3.3 million newly registered voters, many from rundown immigrant neighborhoods recruited by Sarkozy in 2000.

The participation rate is about 30 percent more than the same age in 1995, when Chirac, an election at tact, said the presidential vote was a "coup d'etat," in 2000 spending legislation.

The options are being presented to Congress on a fast track. With the House vote May 15 and the Senate vote May 19,

"We are not a science," said Rigole, "Diagnosing of mental health is a complex field that involves a prediction of violence is complex and is very reliable.

Cigars cannot force students to seek mental health help, and under privacy laws, cannot contact the student's parents unless the student is an "over" danger to himself or others. Even if the university student's parents are uninformed," Rigole usually confirms updates from the mental health facility with the student's permission.

Austie Poy issue basal area campus advisory about former student

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., Austin Peay State University officials issued an emergency campus advisory about a "disgraced former student" after they made threats against the school to local media and government officials following the shootings at Virginia Tech.

APD officials issued the advisory about Mariah Collier on Friday, the day after Collier reportedly called The Leaf-Chronicle newspaper and expressed frustration about being banned from campus.

Collier, who lives in Florida, was seen Friday in Nashville, told the newspaper she felt she had been a victim. APD might have experienced a similar shooting to what happened in Blacksburg, Va., the newspaper reported Saturday.

A university spokeswoman said Saturday that the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation has contacted Collier and does not believe she has any threat to the campus.

Civil liberties versus safety

Lake also talked about fighting against an enemy that is not a nation-state, and thus is hard to identify—speaking of insurgents who are law-abiding citizens most of the time, which allows them an increasing capacity to hide.

The Al Anbar province in Iraq approached this problem, Lake said, and is now working to fix it by sending local men to become police officers.

Absence takes toll on class

"I am in no way recovered and fit and healthy, therefore in uncertain about how long they will be well enough to return to teach in a formal policy to replace a professor after a predetermined period of time, having an international team that... We are not so eager to know precisely... We had said that we were going to get that changed. We had an international team that could not call themselves the "UCF Chiefs."" We tried, but I guess there's just too much liability. It was just a legality thing. Our university is just really scared of having over 400 clubs and having liabilities." A unique accomplishment of the White/Stout team was meeting with newly-elected Charlie Crist. "[Stout] and I are the only (student body) president and vice presidents that are there at this moment. [Previously] you really didn't have much idea of what was taught."

"The team set out on over 45 campaigns and overuse 80 programs this year... "We have a couple more weeks, and I feel really good about next year." Hollinger said. "I'm so glad we ran on a safety platform. I look forward to a great year of making a more accessible and approachable SGA for students."

Throughout White's administration, UCF has numerous changes due to the impact made by White and Stout. Some of their achievements include: establishing the new first-time national policy, launching steps to start a medical-arts program at UCF, establishing the Difficult Discussions series, helping UCF to get the Hartford Principles, and setting up the Global Perspectives speaker series. The one goal they set out to accomplish and didn't get much for registration for sponsored student organizations to use "UCF Chiefs" in front of their names.

Preparing for the worst

In a world where security concerns are always present, it's crucial to be prepared for any unexpected events. At Virginia Tech, the university has taken steps to ensure the safety of its students and faculty. The school has installed new security systems in the campus buildings, including the classroom where the incident occurred. The university has also implemented a reverse 911 system that automatically calls campus phones in case of an emergency, providing a quick and efficient means of communication.

With heightened security measures in place, Virginia Tech has become a model for other universities across the country. The openness of the college campus is evident in the way the administration communicates with students and faculty. President John S. Crotty said, "The tragedy at Virginia Tech is a good reminder to look at the systems and procedures we have in place to see if we can improve those to make them better.

Although many universities in the U.S., especially those in Florida, have had their own scares in the past, the events at Virginia Tech highlighted the need for more comprehensive security measures. The university has been criticized for not taking action in the wake of previous incidents, but their response to the tragedy was seen as a wake-up call.

At UCF, the Counseling Center offers step-by-step instructions to faculty and students on how to handle extreme behavioral problems, ranging from prolonged depression or schizophrenia to violent behavior. The center provides a safe space for students to talk about their concerns and receive the necessary help.

As the Facebook profile picture of the VT logo slowly changes to a different shade, students and faculty who were there that day will always remember the tragedy as they walk the campus grounds. The school has come a long way since that day, and it's important to continue learning from the past to ensure a safer future.

SUCCESS FOR UCF AGAINST RICE IS OUT OF REACH

MELISSA HEYROR

The UCF softball team received this weekend that it may have desperately needed—a wake-up call.

Despite a somewhat impressive record, the Knights, then ranked third in Conference USA, received a reality check in the form of two losses to the C-USA leader, the USA.

In Saturday's doubleheader, the Knights fell to the USA 3-0 and 4-2, respectively.

The Knights gained an early advantage as Junior right fielder Dwayne Bailey dived for a hit in the bottom of the first inning to give the Knights a 1-0 lead in game one. The Owls were unable to turn that into a run, and the Knights went on to win, 3-0.

In the second game, the Owls took the lead with a run in the first inning and never looked back, winning the game, 4-2.

The Knights out-hit the Owls, 11-7, but were unable to score more than two runs in either game.

Despite the losses, the Knights continued their run of success in the Conference USA tournament, advancing to the quarterfinals with a victory over the Owls on Friday night.

In other C-USA action, the Rice Owls defeated the Memphis Tigers 8-4, and the Florida International Panthers defeated the Marshall Thundering Herd 4-2.

The UCF softball team dropped its first match in round one of the Conference USA Tournament on Friday to the University of Illinois at Springfield, 4-0 and 7-4.

The Cougars scored two runs in the first inning of the game, and added three more in the third inning to take a 5-0 lead. Despite a valiant effort by the Knights, the Cougars maintained their lead throughout the game to win, 7-4.

In the second game, the Cougars continued their dominance, scoring four runs in the first inning and adding two more in the second inning to take a 6-0 lead. The Cougars went on to win, 7-4.

Despite taking doubles, the Knights couldn't hold on in singles competition, falling just two runs behind the Cougars in both games.

While the Knights were unable to overcome the Cougars in singles play, they fought hard in the double matches, but were unable to overcome the Cougars in both matches.

The UCF Men's Tennis team dropped its first match in round one of the Conference USA Championships on Thursday to the University of South Carolina.

The Knights fell to the Gamecocks 4-0, ending their season.

Despite a strong effort by the Knights, the Gamecocks were too much for UCF, winning all four singles matches and three of the four doubles matches.

The Knights lost all four singles matches, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1, and 6-0.

In doubles, the Knights lost all three matches, 6-2, 6-4, and 6-1.

The Knights finished the season with a record of 12-12, with an overall record of 17-13.

Magic drop first game to Pistons

Five Pistons score in double figures to earn 100-92 victory

MIKE HOUSEHOLDER

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — The Detroit Pistons tried the Hack-a-Shaq strategy against Shaquille O'Neal and the Miami Heat last postseason. The Pistons implemented the half-court, half-speed plan on Saturday night, and it paid off.

O'Neal scored 22 points, but his eighth free throw of the game hit the front of the rim, and the Heat's 103-92 loss to the Pistons in Game 1 of the opening-round series...

• The Pistons calmly converted three-quarters of their free throws in the first round.
• They connected on 12 of 15 from the line.
• Their free-throw percentage since the first postseason game against Chicago has been more poetic (tutnf:slonla :Jutuii · April 23, 2007).

"Dwight was great. I wasn't sure if he was going to play so I asked him right before game time and he just murdered," Grant Hill said.

``I didn't know what that meant, but I guess I know now that mumbling is good. He had a good game here in Detroit, and I knew he was trying to do that."

The Pistons are trying to at least reach the conference finals for the fifth straight year, a streak only one NBA team has surpassed in better than two decades.

The Los Angeles Lakers advanced to the conference finals six times in a row from 1984-90.

Solve the problem early before it happens again

I've been debating how to use the internet space for good. With this being my last week as a student at UCF, I wonder if it is too late to make a difference. I'm sure that there are more than a few people out there who think that my efforts are of no use. But I believe that we have a duty to speak the truth, even if no one listens.

The problem at VT was the lack of guns for protection

I am sure that there are many people who are concerned about the lack of guns on college campuses. However, I believe that it is not enough to simply give students guns. We need to address the root cause of the problem: the lack of security on college campuses.

In the past, students have been able to carry guns on college campuses because they were allowed to do so under state law. However, this law was overturned by a federal court in 2010, which ruled that states could not prohibit students from carrying guns on campus.

In response to this ruling, many colleges have implemented stricter gun policies. However, these policies have not been effective in preventing gun violence on college campuses. For example, in 2018, a student opened fire on the University of Central Florida campus, killing one person and injuring six others.

I believe that we need to do more to prevent gun violence on college campuses. We need to establish a national database of gun owners, and we need to require background checks for all gun purchases. We also need to implement stricter gun laws, and we need to make it more difficult for people to obtain guns.

In conclusion, I believe that we need to do more to prevent gun violence on college campuses. We need to establish a national database of gun owners, and we need to require background checks for all gun purchases. We also need to implement stricter gun laws, and we need to make it more difficult for people to obtain guns.

Law-abiding citizens need to be able to carry guns

I am against the Virginia Tech shooting and the shooting at UCF. However, I believe that the problem of gun violence on college campuses is much more complex than just ensuring that students are not able to carry guns. We need to address the root cause of the problem: the lack of security on college campuses.

Tight gun laws may facilitate shootings possible
