Still fighting sexual harassment
Study says colleges continue to struggle
CINDY EHRLICH

In an effort to increase awareness of sexual harassment on UCF's campus, the black and white handbills with the slogans, "Have you been harassed?" will be added to orientation welcome packages to remind freshmen this semester.

The Counseling Center received a great last year when it received a grant from the American Association of University Women to fund the study of sexual harassment on UCF's campus.

"Two-thirds of the respondents who experienced sexual harassment shared at least one of the symptoms to the American Association of University Women, showed similar results to findings at UCF," said Cindy Ehrlich, director of the Counseling Center. "UCF feels that the rest of country and that's why we're leading the way," said Leslie Lieberman, director of the Women's Research Center.

"Part of the reason we wanted to provide those materials was because people were coming on the campus saying that they thought sexual harassment was a moral issue and that it was accepted by the administration," said Christine Morrison, coordinator of Victim Services.

"It's something that occurs in middle school and in high school, and if it continues in college, then we have a problem," said Christine Morrison.

"Today there is an increased awareness of sexual harassment through e-mails, instant messengers and telephone calls.

"We're talking in classes a lot about MySpace and Facebook, and the ramifications of how much personal information people post on the Internet," said Christine Morrison, coordinator of Victim Services.

"UCF has received 95 complaints of sexual harassment from students, 53 percent of which were men," said Leslie Lieberman, director of the Women's Research Center. "We've received 3,312 people in attendance as of Thursday. Worldwide, there will be an estimated 8,560,000 students attending the event. Social work major Caroline Cooper, 21, will be one of them. "I went online and saw it was extremely powerful." Beverly said. "Any one who sees it will be moved by it in some way."

"It's someone who is feeling bullying," said Christine Morrison, coordinator of Victim Services. "I think Christian churches need to reach out to Africa."

Dean: Florida will be punished if it moves up its presidential primary before Feb. 5.
WASHINGTON — Not everyone in Florida was pleased Friday when the state's Democratic National Committeeman Howard Dean said the state's Democratic National Committee Chairman Howard Dean had announced Wednesday that Florida had violated the so-called 'faithless electors' rule. Dean said he supported a Jan. 19 caucus in Nevada and a Jan. 29 primary in South Carolina because he said it made more sense to the process that did give geographic and ethnic diversification.

But officers became suspicious when he didn't get out of his car and officers tracked him into the Hamilton police station after being released from the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee on the Bush administration's prewar claims about Iraqi weapons of mass destruction, but said she would not appear in person.

The comments were her first response to a subpoena served on Wednesday by the committee chaired by Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif. Rice said she requested the oversight function of the legislative branch, which she had previously testified in person, but said she could not comply with the order. The White House denied that Iraq had sought uranium from Africa during her confirmation hearings for the job of secretary of state.

But it was determined his teenage son, Destin, needed a kidney transplant. The 51-46 vote was largely along party lines, with congressional opponents are far short of the two-thirds majority needed to override a presidential veto. The Senate may be poised to consider the bill.

Military and civilian officers were killed in the attack occurred at about 9 a.m. in Khanaqin, 50 miles north of Baghdad, a police officer said on condition of anonymity out of concern for his own safety. Ten Iraqi soldiers and five civilians were wounded, the officer said.

Another byproduct of the legislation is expected to be a court hearing for the job of secretary of state, Margaret Warner, D-Calif. After being released from a North Carolina jail earlier this week, Karsten Taylor, 37, of Alafaya Trail · Orlando, Fla., was arrested Wednesday morning in connection with online jail records. He was sleeping in his car parked on 20 acres west of State Road 288 in unincorporated Osceola County, police said.

The 19 caucus in Nevada and a Jan. 29 primary in South Carolina because it adds more diversity to the process. That list that did give geographic and ethnic diversification because it added more diversity to the process. That was one of which 96 percent whites, and the other was 95 percent whites, making the decision to move the primary before Feb. 5, was a goal set by the White House.

Besides the revolver, Leatherwood also had an unloaded shotgun, a knife in the car. Rice said she had already asked the questions she has been subpoenaed to answer a congressional investigation and said she was ready to comply with the order. The White House was sued Monday by弑s, a paratrooper from the 82nd Airborne Division, who was killed in the attack occurred at about 9 a.m. in Khanaqin, 50 miles north of Baghdad, a police officer said.

Police and civilians were wounded, the officer said. Two days earlier, a double bomb attack struck a paramilitary outpost in the province, killing nine U.S. troops.

The Senate may be poised to consider the bill. Those were filed while he was in jail pending a court hearing for the job of secretary of state, Margaret Warner, D-Calif. American warplanes launched a security crackdown in Baghdad on Friday. On Wednesday, four Iraqi police officers were killed when a suicide bomb exploded near the U.S. Embassy in the capital.

WASHINGTON — In a bold wartime challenge to President Bush, the Senate on Friday approved a bill to pull U.S. troops out of Iraq, and was being flown to Los Angeles for a court hearing Thursday. The appearance will be to arrange for their return to Louisville, where they will face federal charges, the U.S. Marshals Service in Louisville said in a statement.

Mom mourns only child

Now, nearly three months after the sudden death of her only daughter, Mary can only say "it is easier knowing how her daughter died."

According to Orange County's Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Tom Garavaglia, the cause of death was a heart muscle abnormality. Garavaglia originally handled the case over to a doctor with less experience, she said. Dr. Jacqueline Benjamin decided to take all possible extra precautions, including handing the case to toxicology.

Although Garavaglia could have relaid the cause of death to Mary after the initial autopsy, she decided to leave it up to Benjamin's discretion as to whether or not to wait.

Mary was informed of the results when the toxicology report came back, three months after her daughter's death.

"The heart had an abnormality. It was enlarged and dilated," Garavaglia said. Christina died naturally due to a condition called dilated cardiomyopathy.

Garavaglia said that with this kind of disorder, the symptoms are breathlessness, shortness of breath and an inability to exercise, none of which Christina expressed to anyone.

Mary told the Florida Times-Union in a previous interview that Christina had been in perfect health for her entire life. "She didn't complain at all the night before. She would never told me," Mary said.

A former roommates, Claire Balgman and Megan Szypanski, learned the cause of Christinas fall on Wednesday.

"I'm relieved to know," Szypanski said. "I worry about my friends more now." She learned of the unexpected death, all three of Christina's roommates moved out of their Lake Claire apartment.

"I felt uncomfortable in her room because she was so sick," Szypanski said. Christina moved back home to live with her parents in Orlando.

Szypanski found Christinas body with Mary in her apartment in November.

"The night before, I was crying through the whole thing," Mary said.

The tragedy at Virginia Tech had a personal effect on Mary — she, like the parents of 27 other students, lost a child.

"I saw it first thing Tuesday morning. I finally had to stop watching it because I was crying, I'm always crying," Mary said.

After a memorial held in the Student Union, honored 21 students who lost a family member.

"It was very unusual," Mary said. "I'm sure they meant well."

tackled into Taylor's belt; his Nissan Sentra contained a ceramic bullet and an 8-mm round, in addition to a box of ammunition capable of piercing bullet-proof glass.

That was Saturday. On Wednesday, UCF students began hearing about the arrest — first through rumor and gossip, and then at noon through local news broadcasts on several stations.

Not 90 minutes after the first news broadcasts, UCF police received a phone call that there was an armed gunman roaming around Pegasus Pointe. The entire police department responded immediately and began to surround the perimeter.

"It was a false alarm," Roop said. "But they didn't make it worse," Roop said, referring to the believed perimeter coverage.

Roop spent all day Wednesday monitoring a media frenzy, and when word got out that Taylor had been arrested with an AK-47 just last Saturday, dealing with relatives and counselors, some belligerent that they weren't notified.

"I came home with a headache," Roop said. In addition to the media, Roop said, the students were a little surprised to hear about the event that day after the arrest.

"I really feel that they should be able to get the word out to us quickly," GLA President Brandie Hollinger said. "When I heard about it on Wednesday, I thought it had happened earlier that day."

Hollinger said that an e-mail would have sufficed.

"It makes me feel a little bit better when I open my e-mail and see that they're sending out the information," Hollinger said. "It makes me feel safer because I know where the information is."""

Knights run down Bulls in 11-5 victory

BRIAN HURSTAFF

The UCF Baseball team entered Tuesday's game mired in an offensive slump.
They had 14 hits, with six Knights recording a three-day total of 45-over-par 912, while East Carolina finished with a 90­ over-par 912.

Junior Kiko Vazquez led the Knights throughout the tour­ ament finishing fourth in the individual rankings with a three-day total of 87-under-par 219.

The Knights shot a three­day total of 9-under-par 207, which was also the lowest round by UCF this year.

UTEP's Gerina Mendoza was the highest individual finisher, shooting a three day total of 9-under-par 207.

Russell to go first in our 2007 mock draft

ZACH MOORE

Outside of the Super Bowl, the NFL Draft is by far the most impor­tant day for any team. Teams can find the gem that turns them into a contender or can waste millions of dollars on a prospect that only plays three seasons and then is released.

So as teams finalize their boards and prepare for Saturday and Sunday, I will take a quick swing at predicting the first round.

1. Oakland Raiders — JaMarcus Russell, QB, Louisiana

Common sense says the Raiders have to take Russell, but when have the Raiders ever exhibited common sense? No, Camping out to terminate, but owner Al Davis is in love with Russell's arm strength and he is calling the shots.

“...If we're gonna run, offensively, we're gonna have to climb on Vazquez's back.”

Golf ties for third in C-USA tourney
Connelly shoots season low with 1-under-par 71

MELISSA HEYBROOK

The UCF Women's Golf team matched their season best finish, with a third place tie for third place in the Conference USA Championships on Wednesday at the Limestone Spring Golf Club In Orangea, Fla.

"We played our best, just came up a little bit short at the end," head coach Emily Klein said in a press release. "We're happy for Memphis, but a little disappointed in ourselves. We really played well until the end of the round today, but we struggled a little bit coming in. We really want­ed it, just made a few too many mis­takes.

The Knights shot a three­day total of 30-over-par 902 which placed them in a tie for third with UTep and SMU. Finishing in the top two spots were Memphis and East Carolina.

Memphis finished with a three­day total of 48-over-par 912, while East Carolina finished with a 90­ over-par 912.

Sophomore Stephanie Connelly led the Knights throughout the tour­ ament finishing fourth in the individual rankings with a three-day total of 87-under-par 219.

The finish was the highest for a Knight this season and was good enough to earn her all-tournament honors.

Connelly shot her best round of the season with a third round total of 7-under-par 69 which was also the lowest round by UCF this year.

The Knights were Annabel Silk and Sara Elahi who each shot 73 in the opening round.

The Knights are off until the NCAA Regional which begins May 14, 2007.
Lions to take yet another wideout

By JIM CORCORAN

The Chicago Bears have a young and extremely talented wide receiver corps, led by second-year player Bernard Berrian. Berrian was drafted in the third round of the 2004 NFL Draft out of Michigan State and has been a key part of the Bears' offense in his first two seasons. Berrian has a strong combination of size, speed, and hands, making him a potential pro bowl-caliber receiver for years to come.

The Bears' wide receiver depth chart looks very impressive with Berrian, Cole Beasley, and Brandon Marshall leading the way. Berrian is a physical receiver who can make catches in traffic and has excellent chemical with quarterback Jay Cutler. Beasley is a big-bodied receiver who can run after the catch and is a good route runner. Marshall is a smaller receiver with excellent hands and good speed, making him a perfect fit for the Bears' high-powered offense.

The Bears' wide receiver depth chart is a key reason why they are considered one of the top teams in the NFL. With Berrian and Beasley providing a strong 1-2 punch, the Bears have the potential to have one of the best offenses in the league. They are a team to watch closely as they continue to develop their young talent and build around their strong foundation.

The Bears have a young and talented group of wide receivers, which will make it tough for opponents to defend against them. With Berrian, Beasley, and Marshall leading the way, the Bears will be a force to be reckoned with in the NFL for years to come.
The Killers opened with a bang at a House of Blues-sponsored show at the UCF Arena on April 20. Actually, they opened with a few bangs. Keeping with the theme of its tour, which is inspired by the band's latest album, Sam's Town, the performance was preceded by a home-made video of their small desert hometown just outside of Las Vegas.

Students and fans were a little confused when a giant screen was pulled down to block the stage. Minutes later, what sounded like an orchestra started with the video and it led into their album titled song, "Sam's Town."

The black-and-white home-made movie featured scenes from Sam's Town, similar to those in the album booklet. The video lasted less than three minutes before it was abruptly cut off and the screen quickly pulled up to reveal The Killers, center stage, with such a lightshow surrounding them that would make any UCF

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

You won't save lettuce at upscale salad bar

Designer Greens lets you get salads your own way

JESSICA SIAGGIO
Community Writer

With a sparsely modern decor and a subdued antici­pation, the beauty of the new Designer Greens restaurant in the Waterford Towers shopping center remains cool.

The restaurant, which com­petes with neighboring Citigroep and Panera for the soup and salad set, features a glass counter salad bar whose service can be slow. If only one chef is behind the bar. Of course, with any new restau­rant, there are inexperienced employees, and so delays can be expected.

The menu is composed of mostly pinnas, salads and soups, which you can mix and match to form a meal.

The “make your own salad” option is prominently dis­played when you walk in. Custom­ers first choose which type of lettuce — romaine or field greens — and then can choose five “toppings,” ranging from bell peppers to mandarin orange slices. Pretzels cost extra, between $2 to $3.50 per topping, and included grilled salmon, chicken and shrimp.

The idea was great, and the salad was beautiful, but once you clamp all the cores together, expect the bill to be about $10. Depending on your tastes and budget, this either fits the bill or sends you searching for cheaper alternatives.

For vegetarian students, Designer Greens couldn’t be a better choice. Because you can dictate what does and doesn’t go in your salad. Meats are easily replaceable, and there are dozens of fresh options to choose from. Toppings come in a variety of cheeses, fruits, vegetables and beans that allow the customer to make any sort of salad they can imagine.

Although it seemed to attract students, with its clean lines, social tables and free WiFi, Designer Greens also serves beer and wine, so if having a salad, a glass of merlot and writing your last term paper all at the same time sounds good — this is your place.

But, if you’re a penny­wise college student you’ll find the restaurant’s compen­sating features such as Panera around more suitable for cash­strapped students on a budget. Either way, do what your mother said and eat your greens.

Rerun fun this summer at the movies
Thrifts, chains and deputies to beat the summer heat

WILLIAM GOSS
Sun-Sentinel

The coming months of the movies may leave one with a fair feeling of deja vu, as a scene may appear again and again, even fourth and fifth helpings of popular franchises.

We've already seen more than our fair share of Spider-Man, Star Wars, Pirates of the Caribbean: The Curse of the Black Pearl, and the same old summer spectacles.

But summer is not quite over, and the movies continue to be a welcome alternative to spending plenty of big booms on the beach or at the pool.

To enjoy a fun day at the movies, the Orlando Sentinel reports on several exciting new releases that are worth watching this summer.

The robots need not flee the opposition of Robin Williams and the comedic counter-programming of Jamiie Lee Curtis (July 6), which appears to be Yes, Man, with Mandy Moore, The Office’s John Krasinski, and Williams wedding between scripts.

On Friday, the 30th of July, John Cusack investigates the ghosts of 1967, while everyone’s favorite wizard continues to battle evil in Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix.

Adam Sandler and Kevin James get married for the benefit of 1 in 3 Providence Church and Larry, and their characters would likely check out the remake of the John Waters musical Hairspray (July 19).

On July 27, The Simpson’s make their leap from the small screen to the silver screen, and on August 3, Jason Bourne is back in action with The Bourne Ultimatum.

In case that doesn’t satisfy your trilogy jones, there is always Rush Hour 3 on August 10, which will bring a much-needed twist to that franchise.

Looking to end the summer on a pair of scores are horror remakes The Departed (August 10, starring Nicolas Cage and Daniel Craig) and Halloween II (August 31, directed by Bob Foelsch).

What already seems to be a fun rendezvous for the summer’s hit is neither a sequel, a remake, but rather writer-director Judd Apatow’s follow-up to The 40-Year-Old Virgin.

Field Guide to Love concerns Virginia’s Seth Rogan and Grey’s Anatomy star Katherine Heigl as they cope with an unexpected pregnancy following their one-night stand.

Unquiversity expected is Apope and company can take such a simple premise and make it for hilarious and heartwarming situations. I hesitate to overdo it, but it’s what I expect when you’re expecting the same old summer spectacles.

Since its controversial birth, the miniskirt has always been a simple fashion accessory and is very popular for spring. Many girls at UCF can be seen sporting their miniskirts with T-shirts, tank tops, and flip-flops.

The miniskirt has been around since 1966, when British fashion designer Mary Quant premiered the shorter-than-average skirt. It made them more attractive for young women, and Quant's creation is still influencing fashion more than 40 years later.

For many UCF students, a 20-year-old political science and international studies major, bought her miniskirt from Hollister Co. for about $40. She bought it because, she said, it was not too short or long and looked comfortable, and because it is made of denim. If decided it would go with a lot of things in her wardrobe. She likes to pair it with tank tops and T-shirts. A junior in the business school, looks to screen Kate Hudson for her fashion and style influence. "She's bohemian, not too trendy, and she does her own thing," Mary said.

Another UCF student who can be spotted wearing her miniskirt is chalk in Marilyn Monroe, a 20-year-old sophomore majoring in art. She said she bought her miniskirt from Macy's for about $40 because she liked the color. Perez plans to pair her miniskirt with casual shirts for school and looks to Jessica Alba for her fashion and style influence. "She keeps it classy but cute," Perez said.

A 20-year-old freshman majoring in computer engineering, also said she has been wearing her miniskirt on campus. She brought it from Bealls for about $40. "It just replaces shorts," Perez said, adding that she piano cued it with tank tops, and she said she also dresses it up. "I don't have a celebrity who she looks to for fashion or style advice, she said she just does her own thing.

"Miniskirts are always at most retail stores and are popular in denim and stretchy materials. They are great for a day at school, a night of dancing or going to the beach, and because they can be dressed up or down, it is a great investment to make to add some versatility to a wardrobe."

The diversity of The Killers fan base is amazing. The audience ranged from students to middle-aged parents.

Ticket availability for the show was a problem, leaving many to rely on eBay. "You bought mines right when they went on sale," said junior ad/PR major Mary Everhart. "My friends tried to get one a week later, and they were sold out."

After ending the set with "Die Young," showing how they've grown into a formidable national act, and "All These Things That I've Done," the crowd wanted more for its encore. The Killers came out for three encore songs, much to the delight of the crowd.

Playing "When You Were Young" for the second and final time, Perez said the band wanted to end the show with style.

After the last note was played, drummer Ronnie Vannucci grabbed the flowers that adorned the stage and tossed them onto the crowd, which went wild trying to grab them. "It's ending to a rousing show."
