Star Wars fans feel the Force at MGM studios

LAUREN PAULUSKA

With a league of fans from around the country, Star Wars Weekends at Disney-MGM Studios proved to be the highlight of the year for everyone who doesn't dress up like a Darth Vader.

With several events like the Jedi Training Academy and Padawan Mini Challenge, the costume-clad bunch of Star Wars fans Lectured on the Force while pretending to be a student who came from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, which has been reeling from financial turmoil, turnover and with control of sponsored compliance.

The decision also came the same month that special permission was appointed to resolve financial and operational problems at Florida A&M.

UCF Housing and Residence Life and Partnerships Apartment management said they would find the residence members of the damaged apartment place to stay if the damage made the apartment unavailable, said Zdenka Gomolka, with the office of News and Information.

After an hour of waiting, Labotte and Kernicki were told they had 30 minutes to collect whatever they needed for the night. Permanent transfer to another apartment due to smoke and water damage would be discussed later.

Tortoises susceptible to lung disease

Bernard is the leading researcher studying the impact of a disease on gopher tortoises at CREOL Pond in Florida, a natural area that serves as a refuge for these reptiles. Bernard believes that the gopher tortoise is a keystone species, and its health is crucial to the preservation of the area and the habitats it occupies.

"The gopher tortoise is a keystone species," Bernard explained. "When it is affected by disease, the impact on the ecosystem can be severe."

Bernard has identified a new disease that affects gopher tortoises, called peritonitis. This disease can lead to secondary infections, which can be fatal to the tortoises. Bernard is working with other researchers to understand the disease and develop strategies to control it.

"The disease is spreading rapidly," Bernard said. "We need to act quickly to prevent it from spreading to other areas."

Bernard is working with state and federal agencies to implement control measures and monitor the disease. He is also working with local communities to educate them about the disease and the importance of protecting the gopher tortoise.

"The gopher tortoise is a keystone species," Bernard said. "We need to protect it and its habitats to maintain a balanced ecosystem."
Changes threaten school's spirit

A little over a year ago, UCF's administration and the Athletics department took a step, a colossal one, toward becoming a high-profile, high-pressure athletic program. The construction of an on-campus football stadium became a reality instead of an imaginary dream. There is no doubt that Bright House Networks Stadium is a significant step, forward, in becoming a competitive athletic program.

Nobody can expect to gain credibility or respect overnight. Maybe the new logos and the deletion of Redskin from the name are bound to happen down the road and end up with a new face, but Horford won't be in shape for spring training if he doesn't start turning potential into wins.

Michael Beutier (George Mason) 6'10'' 241 Green played great alongside Roy Hibbert at Georgetown, now he'll be paired with former No. 1 overall pick Andrew Bogut in Milwaukee.

ls. Minnesota Timberwolves: Al Jefferson (Florida State) 206 lbs. Jefferson may be the best player on the market in the off-season. He can provide something the Wolves desperately need - a scoring threat for NBA coaches.

3. Charlotte Bobcats: Tyrus Thomas (Clemson) 7'0'' 230 It is supposed to be the Chinese version of Kevin Garnett. Hopefully for the Bobcats he's the real deal, because they desperately need him to start turning potential into wins.

9. Chicago Bulls (from New York): Spencer Hawes (Spokane HS) 7-7 244 Hawes showed flashes of brilliance while playing for the Hornets. Hopefully for the Bulls he can provide some scoring upside to take the pressure off players like Gordon and Lump Dog. I also wouldn't be surprised to see Chicago trade this pick.

10. Sacramento Kings: Brandon Wright (North Carolina) 6'9'' 230 Wright is in rebuilding mode, even if they don't want to admit it. Wouldn't be surprised to see them matching a lower offer than the one they made last year.

And UCF's Sports Information office has done a great job of highlighting the tradi­tion over the last month on UCFAthletics.com with the "The Knights are Coming Home" series.

From the humble beginnings of the football program against St. Leo in a downpour on a Cape Cod night in 1977 to the legacy left behind by Torchy Cov's basketball teams that went to the Division II Final Four in 1997.

The biggest crisis of UCF have been there that we have no tradition within our own school or our community. Every school has to start somewhere, right? When Michigan, Notre Dame and even our neighbors in Florida didn't even evolve overnight. The best teams that you associate their logos and uniforms with the school.

Oden, Durant and UF alum round out top five

WOODY WOMMACK

After the least-watchable Finals in NBA history concluded a little over a month ago, experts have spent more time talking about the off-season than they have about Thursday's NBA Draft.

However, while they've been covering the free agency scene, one reporter has been glued to the coverage Sunday and Monday attending the Florida Pro-Deep Camp at Disney's Wide World of Sports.

And with the news that the most prosperous Big East coach to have ever graced the Sunshine State returns in the fall, I'm ready to share my knowledge about the players drafted.

So without ado, here is my 2008 NBA Mock Draft, which doesn't include trades, which are bound to happen in any draft.

1. Portland Trailblazers: Greg Oden (Ohio State) 7'0'' 275 lbs.

There's been a lot of debate in the state of Oregon about whether this is the right pick or not. It is.

2. Seattle SuperSonics: Kevin Durant (Texas) 6'10'' 226 lbs.

What a great consolation prize for the Sonics. Not only do they get a player that will make an immediate impact, they may be drafting the man that can help keep the franchise in Seattle.

3. Atlanta Hawks: Al Horford (Florida) 6'9'' 246

I really expect the Hawks to trade down and end up with a dif­

dent player, but Horford will definitely be the third player selected.

4. Memphis Grizzlies: Corey Brewer (Florida) 6'10'' 215 Brewer can defend three positions and I really think he'll line up on the radar at Florida. Look for him to have an instant impact defensively, especially playing alongside P.J. Brown.

5. Boston Celtics: Joakim Noah (Florida) 7'0'' 227

The Celtics love aiso, even though I don't. Noah probably would have been the No. 1 overall pick last year, so at least Celtics fans can pretend they won the lottery.

6. Milwaukee Bucks: Jeff Green (George Mason) 6'10'' 224

Green played great alongside Roy Hibbert at Georgetown, now he'll be paired with former No. 1 overall pick Andrew Bogut in Milwaukee.

BRIAN MURPHY

The UCF Baseball team's season ended on May 25 with a 1-2 loss to Memphis. In Major League Baseball, most players try to get away from the game after their season has ended and try to stay in shape for spring training in February.

It's a different story in college. Less than a month after being knocked out of the Conference USA Championship, many Knights are tuning their attention to summer baseball leagues to improve for the 2008 season.

This year, 10 Knights are playing in summer baseball leagues in Massachusetts, Maryland, Virginia and Florida. If players have to attend summer school, they play in the Florida Collegiate Summer League, which has teams in ketum Springs, Leesburg, Sanford, Winter Park and Winter Springs.

There's no reason to dare drop 'fighting' from their nicknames.

Now programs are some of the most respected and most successful in college football. There is no denying that these programs have made immense improvements along the way but they've always kept their roots. My arguments towards those critics of UCF has to be given the program time. Tradition will build itself. Those fans sitting in the stands on that rainy September night never thought they would see the Big House in front of them.

That's a whole different environment right around par, so stay focused. This feels great.

There are some of the most talented kids in the world playing baseball. That is, until fall baseball begins in mid-September.

After Peter's dad, Francis, dies, Peter finds paternity.

Dolores O' Riordan has been relested back to the wild, only this time she is unaccompanied by her Irish fanned bass mates, The Cranberries.

It has been four years since The Cranberries hit song member has gone on to pursue solo musical careers. Fealing her turn, O'Reardon doubted Are You Listening? her musical comeback after having spent a few years of the limelight.

Released on Sanctuary Records, the album features 2 tracks very near and dear to the Irish songwriter. The making of the album differed for the radio veteran, now 20-year-old industry experience has involved showcasing her talent to the world.

"I was the first time in my life I was a front girl. I had no inhibitions, which is how it felt when I first started out. That's truly visible here" says O' Riordan of her solo album.

O’Riordan's voice with her apart from other female vocalists in much of the same way that Shania Twain has the utmost pitch modulation.

Though she appears independent of her band on Are You Listening? the album still sounds like something The Cranberries could have released. Sure for the extremely personal lyrical content, there is a consistent familiarity among the melodies that lends itself to the early '90 and The Cranberries Everybody Else Is Doing It, Why Can't We? this is not to discredit the newly solo artist, but to further the point that the music is in her trademark voice. Let's be honest, the "Shania" wouldn't have played our anywhere near same if it had being sung by anyone else. The same can easily made with O’Riordan's new material.

Dolores O’Riordan Album: Are You Listening?

These days, she seems to have let the shine in on her Byrne lines. Her structure from former musical endeavors and a newfound focus on the joys of motherhood might be to blame for upbeat tempos and poppy vibes. She embraces an echo chords effect on the new album. "Black Rose," and "Apple of My Eye" are reminiscent of songs by Enigma with their ethereal ballad-like chanting.

The album peaks with the songs "October" and "In the Garden." For those seeking a flashback fix, look no further than "Stay With Me" for its evident Cranberries-like influence. The instrumentation of supporting melodies on the album is carefully held together by heavenly synthesized piano pieces and various guitar parts.

Are You Listening? is impressive but cannot impressively to entirely shudder the reference of O’Riordan's alter ego. Though she's built up a small tour in the U.S., there are currently no dates scheduled. Perhaps, O’Riordan will spend most of her time in the upcoming months planning more shows in Europe and promoting her new album.

iPod making mark in music, fashion worlds

JAMIE SAMULAS Staff writer

Fashion and music have a relationship that mixes leather pants, better bad and sly, and the iPod is a flash point example of that.

I mean, look at those color-tv ads they have to pass Miss for a musician turned fashionista. These portable music players have made a mark in the music world and on our campuses.

Pretta Barker, a 25-year-old senior business management major purchased her iPod from Wal-Mart. She chose the iPod over other MP3 devices because of its quality. She listens to hip-hop on her blue nano, complete with a red "shirt" covering it, mostly while riding the UTC shuttle and walking out the gym.

Another student spotted following the iPod trend on campus, Ken Williams, a 20-year-old junior marketing major, has a white, 30-gigabyte iPod. He bought it in the Best Buy and because of convenience.

"I have a lot of music, and it's easier to have all on one source," Mr. Williams said. He prefers to listen to music from the 80s and 90s while walking around campus or jamming out in his car.

Another student, Doreen, a 21-year-old junior marketing major, loves to wear her iPod while she walks around campus or does homework. Good Music can help you get your study done! She received her 30-gigabyte, white iPod, which she keeps covered with a pink iPod "sock," as a birthday gift. She prefers to use other MP3 players because it lacks music, and she can find her songs faster. She also likes the fact that her iPod can play video.

That day, Doreen wasirl mate "hand" Willow, but said she always has her iPod on standby. "I seem to be so much [music]," she said.

Seeing that iPods are available in a variety of colors, styles and sizes, it can make both your fashion and musical endeavors. Prices range between $80-$60 depending on the size and number of gigabytes.

Whether you're working out, taking a long drive, or dancing in your ears while breathing your teeth, like the in Drew's Gray's Anatomy, the iPod is a fashion and musical sensation.
Two Flugtag records sunk

Imagine a giant sombrero gliding off of there and really flew good, but this thing catches the wind really well. "We never would have been infected with 'Bonnorsite.' Once afflicated by Bonnorsite, you will no have any problems seeing in the dark for five days while enjoying an amazing sonic experience and interesting sights," said a team member.

"There's no way you can see your Bonnorsite experience away from you. The people that you go to Bonnorsite will like the people you want to go to Bonnorsite with — you'll always have that Bonnorsite," said another team member.

"The Kentucky team Rocky Top Rocket flew a remarkable 105 feet to capture the North American Flugtag flight distance record of 81 feet, which was set a year before in Nashville. In addition to capturing the prize for the closest approach and public attendance, the park was free to all!" said a team member.
