COS reps aplenty; 7 seats empty

JEFFREY BILEY

The large white board announcing the candidates for the Student Government Association Senate elections was not empty spread.

This year, four entire Senate sections were empty. Crowning Officer of Optics, Undergraduate Studies, Graduate Studies and Regional Campuses. Seven seats in all were empty: one seat was duel.

In contrast, some seats had first candidates, such as the College of Sciences Seat 4.

"If I had a choice, I would have picked a seat I was less," said seat. "But ultimately, whoever works harder deserves the seat.

In the end, Ayten became the chosen one, along with three other candidates who didn't garner enough votes to get a seat. Current appointed to an unfilled position.

Empty seats in the Senate are appointed. This appointment process involves meeting with Student Body President Brandie Hollinger, going to committee.

Volunteer UCF visited Nemours Children’s Clinic on Thursday in hopes of putting long-lasting smiles on the children’s faces.

The clinic, located in downtown Orlando, was treated by the Magical Mobile Puppet Theater by the students. Eight volunteers performed puppet shows, read and helped the children with cancer and blood disorders make their own puppets in the Oncology and Hematology waiting room of the clinic.

“Volunteer programs, such as the puppet shows, help to cheer the children’s spirits as they wait for their appointments,” said Bill Moody, Nemours’ Volunteer Director of Volunteer Services. “When the happy children go to see the physician and staff, the happiness and happy because they’re working with happy children, not terry- toried children. It’s a win-win for everyone.”

Maribel Guereza, a patient service specialist, has worked at Nemours for four years and said that volunteers are usually in the waiting rooms with the children, but when the volunteers aren’t present, the kids miss and ask for them. Amber Paucek, UCF’s director of Health, hopes the children enjoy interacting with the volunteers.

“They hopefully won’t dread going to the doctor’s and I hope they’re more of a light-hearted experience.”

To avoid a similar goodby, volunteers put on a show for instant fans.

“I don’t want them to go,” cried a young boy with red hair.

Not all the children had a smile on their face, as the volunteers made their first show. According to Moody, some children are afraid of the waiting room and the play area.

Nemours Children’s Clinic has a special children’s wing called Moody, which provides with the puppet theater and an in-house puppeteer, puppets. From Jack and the Beanstalk to Cinderella, the bandleader of the students gave the volunteers endless possibilities for storytime.

Moody expressed that the Magical Mobile Puppet Theater is not the beginning and end of volunteer options at Nemours.

“If I can give them the opportunity, all the volunteers said they would do it again tomorrow if they could,” Moody said. “It surprised me to know those children weren’t seriously ill because they were happy while we were there,”

Volunteer UCF isn’t a stranger to working with children. On Oct.

Moody said Nemours just received approval to build a new hospital, clinic and research facility in Lake Nona, where the new UCF College of Medicine will be located. They hope to be up and running within the next few years.

Moody Children’s Clinic is the new beginning and end of volunteer options at Nemours. The activities also include arts and crafts, choirs, choirs and magic.

“Tactically try to match the interest of the volunteer to the needs of the clinic,”

Moody said.
Over the past ten years, the college's enrollment has increased by 34 percent. It also takes in more external revenue and its endowment has begun to grow. The college is seeking to expand on campus, with more than 120 million in additional funding alone.

The college's growth in research funding has allowed the College of Education to continue to enhance its technology, including a virtual classroom used to prepare students for real-life experiences they may face as qualified teachers.

The college's growth in research also has a partnership with Progress Energy, which is unique because few universities actually have partnerships with companies off campus.

Progress Energy comes to campus four times a year to share their corporate expertise with current and future administrators.

Rex Culp, the associate dean of Research for the College of Education, said that these administrators "come in as guests, work at a room and work through issues."

In this way they have real-life experience to help balance their lives - they can face daily in their careers.

Working together is also a central theme of the UCF community that the College of Education takes pride in.

"Compared to other universities I have worked at, [such as] the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee," said Jodi White, an associate professor and Lockheed Martin Eminent Scholar Chair, "It is so easy to work here and so easier to work across campuses..."

White described the virtual classroom as a "trans-disciplinary project" because the work combined knowledge of both the College of Education and the College of Engineering and Computer Science.

White said that it is rare for individual colleges at a university to work together in this way, many colleges at UCF have plans and continue to do so.

The greater growth factor visible in the College of Education, White said, that these administrators "come in as guests, work at a room and work through issues."

Kerouac comes to life through readings, videos

AMANDA HARINGTON

Students, professors and community members filled a room in the UCF Student Union Thursday to hear Bob Kerouac's greatest literary contributions. The event was part of a reading series sponsored by the Dreamers in Action program at the University of Central Florida.

The event kicked off with a reading of Kerouac's most famous work, "On the Road." Kerouac's best-known novel, "On the Road" is a chronicle of the road trips taken by its protagonist, Jack Kerouac, as he travels across the United States and Mexico.

"On the Road" is a semi-autobiographical account of Kerouac's life and travels during the 1940s and 1950s. The story is set in the Beat generation and is considered a classic of American literature.

The reading was followed by a Q&A session with attendees, who were encouraged to ask questions about Kerouac's life and work. The event was held in collaboration with the Kerouac Legacy Project, which is dedicated to preserving and promoting the legacy of the author.

The event was part of a larger effort to bring Kerouac's work to a new generation of readers. The Dreamers in Action program, which is part of the University of Central Florida's College of Health and Public Affairs, is working to bring attention to the importance of literature and the need for continued support of the arts.

"Kerouac's work is timeless and relevant today," said Kerouac's granddaughter, Emily Nemens. "It speaks to the struggles of youth and the search for meaning in a world that can be overwhelming."
The military government, meanwhile, boosted the main city of Yangon with troops, swelling their numbers to about 20,000 by Sunday and ensuring that almost all demonstrators would remain off the streets, a diplomat said.

Scores of people also were arrested overnight, further weakening the flagging spring against 40 years of military dictatorship. The protests began Aug. 19.

The protests began Aug. 19. Soldiers have shot and killed protesters, rammed Buddhist monasteries, beaten monks and demonstrators and arrested an estimated 1,000 people in the last week alone. But it was not clear what, if anything, Gambir could accomplish.

The junta has rebuffed overtures of previous U.N. attempts at promoting democracy and Gambir himself spoke to president Win Kyi nearly a year ago with nothing to show for it.

Gambir began Sunday by meeting with the acting prime minister, the deputy foreign minister and the ministers of information and culture in Myanmar’s new bunker-like capital of Naypyitaw, 240 miles north of Yangon.

The meeting, however, did not include: Junta leader Senior Gen. Than Shwe; or his deputy, Gen. Min Aung Hlaing, the two key figures whom Gambir had been pushing to speak with before his arrival.

He was then unexpectedly flown back to the main city of Yangon and whisked to the State Guest House. Win Kyi was briefly freed from house detention and brought over to speak with him for more than an hour, according to U.N. officials.

Win Kyi, the 1991 Nobel Peace prize winner who has inspired the struggle for democracy in Myanmar, has spent nearly 12 of the last 18 years under house arrest. Gambir flew back to remote Naypyitaw late Sunday in hopes of a possible third meeting on Monday, as an Asian diplomat said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

U.N. officials would not comment on speculation that he was carrying a letter from Suu Kyi to the junta but issued a statement that Gambir still hoped to speak with the junta’s top leaders before leaving Myanmar.

The junta did not comment on Sunday’s talks.

The government says 10 people were killed in last week’s violence but independent sources say the number far higher.

Escape routes essential to students’ fire safety

WHERE THERE’S SMOKE...

Fire智能制造 your education. It also destroys property and can be deadly to you and those around you. Always follow the fire safety rules no matter where you live, study, work or play.

SMOKERS

Be sure that ashes are cold before dumping them.
Never leave a burning cigarette, pipe or cigar unattended.
Smoke only in designated areas.

OPEN FLAMES

Always follow rules about burning candles, incense, bottled gas appliances in the apartment or dwelling that you live in.
Electrical Appliances such as irons, hot plates, curling irons, etc. should never be left unattended. Wait for appliances to cool down before putting them away.

TELEVISION CIRCUITS

Do not let cords plug into one outlet can result in a dangerously overloaded circuit.
Always use approved surge protectors for multiple plug-ins. Do not use extension cords.

FLAMMABLE LIQUIDS

Liquids such as gasoline, cleaning fluids, turpentine, mineral spirits, etc., can have deadly consequences if not stored properly.
Please store all hazardous liquids according to product safety specifications.

TRASH & RUBBISH

Take care to dispose of all trash and rubbish properly to prevent the possibility of starting a fire.

The Knights are amazing? Not so fast, my friend

Brian Murphy Staff Writer

Like many of the day's conditions, tight end B.J. Surat was shapeless and dreary at times Saturday. Running back Kevin Smith had yet another record-setting game with a career-high 323 rushing yards, but that was overshadowed by the penalties, turnovers and miscues that marred the Knights' 37-19 victory over Louisiana-Lafayette. Here are the stories of the game:

More second-half lapses

That which spoiled a little bit of UCF's blowout of Memphis last week showed up again against Tulane. Freshman Parker Williams blocked a punt near the end of the first half, but Louisiana-Lafayette took the opening kickoff down to the Knights' 3-yard line. The Ragin' Cajuns scored a touchdown on their next play and after 18 seconds, they had cut UCF's lead to 30-19.

Statistically, the second half didn't look so bad for the Knights, as they were outgained only 15-14 and allowed the total yards then in the first half. But their offense was stagnant and committed two turnovers. The Knights also committed eight penalties in the game for 14 yards.

The Knights allowed 20 unanswered points, lost three fumbles in the third quarter and committed six penalties worth 48 yards in the second half against the Tigers, which kind of puts a sour note on UCF's 56-20 victory.

In the wake of UCF's 37-10 win over Louisiana-Lafayette on Saturday, there are many things that are becoming clearer.

Kevin Smith is one of the best running backs in the nation, how someone loads the nation in rushing yards per game through August, along with production career 10 touchdowns, and doesn't start showing up on national television is beyond me.

The defense looks like it wants to steal the spotlight from Smith, who had the continuing manhandling of the opponent's offensive line.

And speaking of offensive lines, Smith is right when he says he has one of the best in the country.

The reason Smith is on pace to shatter the school record of 1,178 yards on the ground is because he takes what he's learned in practice and applies it to the game.

The Knights want to have a poor Ragin' Cajuns team was a mistake that everyone learned when he went down early in the fourth quarter.

His health is not worth some gradesy statistic. He is the reason his team is putting up 59+ points a game.

So, even though the Ragin' Cajuns had just second to cut the lead to a miniscule 15 points, Smith should have been on the bench, watching either Philip Smith or Curtis Francis take the rest of the carries.

He is too important to have on the field when the game is well in hand.

And as great as the defense has been, it looks like it is having to work less taking up rushing yardage.

On the flip side, allowed Louisiana-Lafayette's Michael DeMarco a 43-yard game on the ground. In games coming up against UCF, Southern Miss' Jeremy Young and the UAB tandem of Sam Hunt and Joseph Webb, the Knights need to find a way to contain mobile quarterbacks and limit the number of plays they can make with their legs.

The Knights also have to learn to hold on to the ball. The Knights have fumbled 13 times this season. Twenty turnovers were a large part of last season's 4-8 record, and if they want to do significantly better than that this year, the Knights need to turn that around quickly.

Prep for UCF #411

UCF's Ashley Writer

UCF junior quarterback Blake Clingan was getting ready for the snap. But taking advantage of the individual competitions that O'Leary holds every Tuesday and Wednesday in practice. He said that both Burgan and Batista were getting ready for the rest of the game. Batista made the field goal, but missed an extra point in the second quarter. That error marked the end of his day, and Torras attempted every placekick for the rest of the game.

Langley kept his job for the rest of the game against Memphis, but he lost a fumble. Instead, it was Robert Batista, whose name wasn't even on the pre-game roster.

Another surprising special teams move was witnessed later in the first quarter when the Knights lined up for their first punt. Freshman Parker Langley, not Blake Clingan, was getting ready for the snap. But Burgan rushing yards. But some of that work was due to backups getting in and getting their names called. As a result, Burgan either put a different look at the offensive line or Curtis Francis take the rest of the carries.

As Smith lay on the ground, it was evident that he was in some serious pain. And that caused a crowd of more than 40,000 people to fall eerily quiet. Smith entered the game third in the nation in yards per game, but to the Knights' face, the sight of him on the ground was of more than just a player. Their season was basically on the ground.

"It seemed like there was no one on the sideline, when he walked down," quarterback Kyle Jarecki said. "It was an accident."

After a minute, Smith got up and walked off the field.
Junior running back rushes for career-high 223 yards

The Knights continued to dominate the nation, then I've got the two...easy. Watch your star play against the Pirates. Downs, etc. A good challenge tonight.

Scholowy's two second-half goals score win for Knights

It was a thrilling end to a three-match stretch in which Schooley scored the game-winner and the Greyhounds scored the second-half goal. The last one coming with just 1 minute, 32 seconds left.

UCF received the offensive right out of the past with junior Arielle O'Leary, who scored two goals.

The Greyhounds started off the scoring at the end of the 28th minute when junior Lea Day ripped a shot that deflected off a UCF defender and sailed above the head of senior goalkeeper Jennifer Hart.

It wasn't until near the end of the half that UCF was able to tally the equalizer off the foot of senior George Freshman Katie Schooley. The ball hit into the box shadowed by two defenders before it dropped off of George, who put in three points in the first half.

The Schooley show started after beating two defenders, but the Knights could not capitalize.

Volleyball swept for third straight time, lose to ECU in Arena opener

RYAN BASS

It seemed like the perfect remedy for a struggling UCF volleyball team, it was playing in the inaugural season of the New UCF Arena, and they were playing the 2-9 Pirates. Serna back into the rotation after missing the past four games; she responded with 10 kills and three blocks. But somehow the Knights let another opportunity slip by.

UCF had a strong consecutive sweep and dropped to .500 on the season, when it was defeated by East Carolina (7-9, 3-3) in 3-0 on Friday night.

"It seemed like everyone was really good tonight at just telling the plain truth to each other and what 's happened in the games," Serna said.

"I think we were real good in second time out there and today everyone was saying 'you need to block' and 'you need to swing' , and today you get us out to the second time out there." - Head coach Bryan Cunningham quoted in the article.

Men's soccer suffers shutout by St. Louis

ZACH FADIS

The UCF Men's Soccer team improved to 1-1 in the season and 10-5 in all matches after a 1-0 victory over the University of Houston at the Hermann Stadium on Saturday.

Despite a 1-0 victory, Cunningham noted that UCF was outplayed by Saint Louis.

"I think we were real good in second time out there and today everyone was saying 'you need to block' and 'you need to swing' , and today you get us out to the second time out there." - Head coach Bryan Cunningham quoted in the article.

Saturday’s match was the first time that UCF had been shutout during the campaign.

Junior Ryan Roushaupt scored a goal in the 83rd minute to make it 1-0, after he had scored a goal-winning goal in the 90th minute in last game against the Bluejays.

Roushaupt currently leads Central Florida in goals, shot, game-winning goals, and is the leader of UCF's scoring offense with five goals.

UCF will look for its next victory Thursday, September 20th, when it takes on Charlotte at the UCF Soccer Complex at 7 p.m.
Five percent more can help UCF

We find the budget crisis haunting Florida's university system is just the beginning. Board of Governors Chairman John Thrasher has taken a hard look at the problem and in his Sept. 27 Board Decision to raise tuition rates 5 percent beginning with the upcoming academic year. This is $85.00 per credit hour, which adds up to $340.00 in extra costs for many students.

What can we say? It's about time. Florida universities have not seen a tuition increase since 2006. UCF has been hit hard by the budget crisis and now is faced with the need to increase tuition. Both Bright Futures and Florida Prepaid will cover the tuition increase, so those of you who have them can breathe a bit easier. For those of you who don't, some of the most money is planned on being spent on those who are financially needy.

UCF has 33,350 full-time students and 6,460 part-time students. Now let's estimate. If the 4,040 full-time students have an extra tuition increase of $85.00 per credit hour, which adds up to $340.00 in extra costs for many students, we would have a total of $3,400,000.

For those of you who don't, some of the most money is planned on being spent on those who are financially needy. For example, if every full-time student takes 15-credit hours and there are always told to go back to school, we have 6,460 part-time students, but what if they were to take 9 credit hours and that 9 credit hours would add up to 9 extra $85.00. That's $761,000 more.

This is all money that should have been spent on someone,"

Just a few weeks ago, Gov. Charlie Crist proposed his budget plan to get Florida out of its protracted baking. Now let's estimate.

The event, which had a $272 million from the university for protection against domestic violence and we should support it in this budget planning.

Who knows how it turned out. Just a few weeks after the event, which had a $272 million from the university for protection against domestic violence and we should support it in this budget planning.

Homesickness isn't just for freshmen

This week, my mom sent me a package of cookies in the mail. I live in New York with a grown-up version of the "Helen of Troy" Park. A package of cookies for just my friends and our daughters. It was the best thing I have ever received in the mail in the past year. I moved into my place at the beginning of this school year and it was quite possibly the best move I have ever made. My youngest brother's 17th birthday, she sent me a package of cookies and I sent me a portion of the goods.

It's amazing that death threats to students are an ongoing concern. These threats should have been settled in court order against Allred, and killed by Allred in Ruschak's wick The event, which had a $272 million from the university for protection against domestic violence and we should support it in this budget planning.

Why couldn't police have been notified of the event, which had a $272 million from the university for protection against domestic violence and we should support it in this budget planning.

It's barely November and we're already hearing about the upcoming budget cuts. Depending on their rank, the $2 million could really be something different for different people. Now, Congressman Kurt Kelly is often referred to as the "Coach of Florida," but I think he should be the "Coach of Florida." We should show support for him and his endeavor. We know bigger.
