Dow up more than 400 points over two days

TIM PARIS

NEW YORK — Wall Street scored its second straight big gain Thursday in hopes of determining advance, there didn’t appear despite the size of the interested move in a day after a rally or big gains for stocks. Thursday’s overall trading reflected a continuation of the bounce that first began on Tues­day, when the Fed lowered its federal funds rate by a steep 0.75 percentage point, to 3.5 percent.

People have that T-word stack on the front of their fore­head. ‘It’s really just a dramatic growth of stock,’ Dow said.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 108.44, or 0.88 per­cent, to 12,378.61, following a strong 300 point gain on Wednesday. The Dow has not finished higher for two straight sessions since Jan. 9.

Broker stock indicators also were rosier. The Standard & Poor’s 500 index rose 13.47, or 1.01 percent, to 1,352.07, and the Nasdaq composite index advanced 44.51, or 1.34 percent, to 3,360.42.

Advancing issues outnumbered decliners by 4 to 3 on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume came to 2.38 bil­lion shares.

The Dow on Wednesday swung 460 points from its low point to high — in a single­day reversal in more than five years.

Stephen Carl, principal and head of equity trading at The Williams Capital Group, said Thursday’s overall trading reflected a continuation of the bounce that first began on Tues­day, when the Fed lowered its federal funds rate by a steep 0.75 percentage point, to 3.5 percent.

He said investors were also encouraged that the govern­ment’s robust plan, while not perfect, appeared to be progressing. Still, despite some investors’ mostly upbeat mood, uncertainty remained.

The market also was encouraged by a widely anticipat­ed agreement between Con­gressional leaders and the White House on an econom­ic stimulus package. The efforts, he said, were aimed at “fleshing out the plan that has been in the works for several weeks.”

The proposal before the board would raise that to $295 per month in the nation, just above Mississippi.

Another approved by the board's budget committee Thursday. It would raise the fees by nearly 2.4 percent, or $10.25, to $295. The board will vote on the proposal at its next meeting, which is scheduled for Tuesday, April 13.

University spokesman Bill Edwards said the fees will need to rise about 2,400 percent annually, or about 10 percent, in order to maintain its fiscal health.

If enrollment in the university's state system is at a low, Edwards said, it would be the first time in the history of the board of trustees for the university to raise fees by more than 10 percent.

It would also be the first time in the history of the board of trustees for the university to raise fees by more than 10 percent.

Student groups across the state support Ron Paul

After some Internet research, I found that Ron Paul has been a candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency for several years. He has been gaining support from college students and young people, and his platform includes issues such as ending the war in Iraq, reducing the size of the federal government, and returning control of monetary policy to the states. I have heard that Paul's supporters are enthusiastic and dedicated to spreading his message, even distributing bumper stickers and other materials to inform others about their candidate. Not only have they reached out to the student community, but they have also hit the online community with a Facebook group titled, "University of Central Florida Students for Ron Paul." It seems that the Ron Paul campaign is working hard to gain support for the man they say should be the next president of the United States. At the booth the student supporters handed out items like bumper stickers, pens, and pens that say, "Support Ron Paul!" People wore t-shirts with "Ron Paul for President" written on them. I have also heard that they have developed a strong network with a database group and "University of Central Florida Students for Ron Paul." However, even if Ron Paul is not the next president, I continue to be impressed by his dedication to reforming our political system and bringing about change in government. I think his campaign is an important example of how everyday people can make a difference in our world.
Med school to exchange land, gain 5 open acres

According to the police report, the UCF Police Department stated that the smell of gas appearing in the middle of the night was unusual and could be detected quickly. Chrifman instructed her staff member, Sarah Fulton, to replace their window with a green plastic panel.

The entire campus is 50 acres, but before the swaps, 5 acres were usable to be used by the medical school because there would be a chiller plant on the property. The swap exchanges the 5 acres of land that the chiller plant is on for 5 acres that the College of Medicine can use.

"We want to be good neighbors, and the exchange of land is beneficial to us," Chrifman said. After earning the BOG’s approval, the developer has begun to take steps to make it happen.

The campus will not only include the College of Medicine, but the Burnett School of Biomedical Sciences and the College of Medicine Library. There is some talk of eventual involvement of the Burnett School of Biomedical Sciences, but this has not been confirmed yet.

The drive is unique to UCF, and it is a separate building designed as a chiller plant. The Burnett School of Biomedical Sciences and the College of Medicine will also make additional hires when it joins the College of Medicine.

Fire dept. orders evacuation

November 17, 2006 • Central Florida Future

The UCF police report stated that the smell of gas around the Qdoba restaurant was obvious. Fire and rescue units from three stations responded to the incident. As the staff of the Student Union waited outside, the fire department attempted to gain access to Qdoba, while managing as little damage as possible.

"It was chilly," it was so late," said Chrifman. "No one was really there, but a small crowd of onlookers were passing by gathering around."

The fire department was initially called out to ask the Student Union staff what was causing the smell but things were located inside the building.

When firefighters breached Qdoba’s doors, a glass panel in one of the doors frames came loose and shattered inside the restaurant. Qdoba has temporarily replaced their window with a green plastic panel.

Once inside Qdoba, the fire department could not determine the source of the gas leak. They were forced to shut down the main gas line to the Student Union.

According to the police report, the building manager was told to have no one use anything that had gas for their personal use. When they were done, I had to get back to that night closed up," Chrifman said. "It finished between 12 and 12:30 a.m." said Chrifman. "We went about our usual closing business, but cops would check on us to make sure there wasn’t still a problem with the gas."

Marrero said that responsibility at Qdoba would be more "diligent about turning off their equipment."

Marrero said that responsibility at Qdoba should be more "diligent about turning off their equipment."

Chrifman explained that having some cracks is normal and in a lot of cases, cracks can be covered with carpet, tile and other kinds of finishes.

"The structural engineers of an independent firm [Nodarse & Associates] verified that it is nothing to worry about, and that it was actually a gas leak," Chrifman said.

For leaks, Qdoba manages and in some cases, the cracks appeared in the middle of the sections.

The sections of the floors were already larger than normal, which is why the cracks are larger than normal.

According to Chrifman, the extra cost to fix these cracks is being covered by RUDL Inter-

McGowan said that the developers are finishing the installation and the wiring and then will undergo the inspection process. After that, the 5 acres will be usable for Knightro’s to determine when Knightro’s will officially open. Knightro’s will be fully operational when it opens, Chrifman said.

"It is unclear exactly how much Knightro’s will cost once finished because the New UCF Arena, Bright House Networks Stadium, residence halls and Knightro’s are all combined in bond issues for financing, meaning Knightro’s is not independently funded," Binette said.

Binette said that no tuition dollars are involved with financing Knightro’s. Sales revenue from stores and restaurants, ticket sales from the Arma and advertising are all being used to finance construction.

Barnes & Noble, located on East Plaza Drive, by Knightro’s, is reported to have opened early and with no problems and opened ahead of schedule. Papa John’s, operations manager at the Barnes & Noble at UCF, Jennifer Wharton, the assistant operations manager for the bookstore, said they opened on Aug. 15, which was one month early.

Wharton said that they did not have any problems opening early and were lucky to benefit from their health permit quickly.

Cory Dukin, the director of operations for Papa John’s Corporate Orlando, said that he cannot recall any problems Papa John’s had surrounding their opening.

Papa John’s is located just one block west of Knightro’s on West Plaza Drive.

Binette said she has a handful of students who have requested refunds due to Knightro’s late opening.

"It is only important to mention that we remain excited about the potential and the future success of the north end of campus," Binette said. "Students continue to rave about the new residence halls and Shops that are great assets to our campus."

Binette also said that the new residence halls, parking garages and other amenities would not be completed ahead of schedule and under budget.

The UCF Men’s Basketball team has an offense that is predicated on ball control, picking your shots and working off of those plays. That, for one evening, the Knights looked like an offensive juggernaut, scoring at will and putting up 109 points on the court and destroying the UTEP Miners 109-80 on Wednesday night at the New UCF Arena. That must be what happens when a team shoots 70.2 percent from the field.

"It’s one of those nights where everywhere is cook­ ing, good, our offense is clicking," guard Dave Noel said. "Everybody was taking shots that they were supposed to. We weren’t forcing anything and we were just knocking down shots. It’s one of those days where everything goes in.”

The 109 points are the most by the Knight in a single game since 1999 and the third-highest total in program Division I history. The field-goal per­ formance matches the best seen at UCF, and it was a true team effort.

The Knights never trailed dur­ing the contest and led by as many as 31 late in the second half.

"It’s one of those nights that history didn’t repeat itself," UCF head coach Kirk Sper­ berg said. "UCF is a very, very good team… Fully expect­ ed this to be a tight, possession-by-possession game."

UCF Men’s Basket­ ball is coming off a 109-point win over UTEP on Wednesday night. UCF's offense unleashes an onslaught with 109 points against the UTEP Miners.

UCF is the offensive juggernaut in Conference USA and UTEP is the defensive juggernaut.

The Knights are one of the best in the country in three-point shooting, ranking fourth in C-USA in shooting percent­ age in the first three minutes with the help of sophomore guards Jermaine Taylor and Mike O'Donnell. Foul­ing UTEP (6-2) to 23-2 to take an early lead.

The Knights know what fast starts and big leads are all about. In their previous game, they had a 92-73 advan­tage against East Caro­ lina. They led Tulsa by as many as 32 points before that, but both of those leads vanished and the Knights were left to grind out two wins. They made sure that history didn’t repeat itself Wednesday night.

UCF’s leading scorer in Taylor on the bench after being called for his second foul early in the first half, O’Donnell and Noel picked up the slack. The duo scored 16 of the entire UCF team in the first half.

The Knights began to really pull away whenFolder Billings was called for his second foul early in the first half, and Noel picked up the slack. The duo scored 16 of the entire UCF team in the first half.

Five Knights score more than 10 points against the Miners

The Knights led by six points with him on the bench. They scored 20 points in the first half, as the field thanks to good ball movement which was a step in the second half as the lead at East Carolina and we were at their loudest with Miners, the UCF fans.

“Especially in the zone We really wanted to get 100; we were at their loudest with the Knights one point. The Knights had topped 100 points since 2004.

Tony Davis gave them what they wanted with a 3-pointer along the right baseline. “I don’t know about the rest of the team,” Davis said, “but I know me, Jermaine, (O’Donnell) and Mikel Bertho, we were on the bench line, (Thomasson) somebody else get another bucket. We were looking at that on the board. We really wanted to get 100; we wanted the time to appreciate it.”

Memphis, Tenn. — The Orlando Magic kept building from long range and didn’t let up until they had a 27-point lead at intermission. Rudy Gay led Memphis with 20 points, while Pau Gasol had 17 points and 11 rebounds. Mike Conley had 17 points for the Grizzlies when Orlando outscored Memphis in the first half, then stretched the lead in the early minutes of the third quarter. That allowed the Magic to build the lead to 10, and they never let the margin dip under double digits the rest of the way.

Draymond Green also scored 16 points for the Magic, and grabbed 10 rebounds. Royce O’Neale finished with 13 points and Maurice Evans scored 12.

But Orlando lost to Memphis at home in December and had dropped nine of the last 10 in the series. Putting into a ‘trap game’ is a sign of weakness and immaturity,” Orlando coach Stan Van Gundy said before the game.

“We played really well after that,” Van Gundy said. “I think all the guys that are playing in our rotation are playing as good as they possibly can be.”

It was our defense that got us going and in the second quarter, we clamped it down and got some stops.”

The Grizzlies when Orlando outscored Memphis in the first half, then stretched the lead in the early minutes of the third quarter. That allowed the Magic to build the lead to 10, and they never let the margin dip under double digits the rest of the way.

The Magic shot 13-of-26 from beyond the arc, for 18 points total. Especially in the zone, it was open 3-pointers. "We took what they gave us. Sometimes it was a less, but the majority of the night, it was open 3-pointers.

Otronicon spoils Orlando techies, gamers

CHRISTINE MULLEN

Otronicon invaded the Orlando Science Center on Martin Luther King Jr. weekend.

The multimedia activities were endless, ranging from building your own video game with Full Sail students to forming your own Rock Band group and performing in front of adoring fans — even if they were just your friends.

The convention offered state-of-the-art technology with various additions to the gaming market.

A big hit for World of Warcraft fans was Blue Orb's display of the newest way to play the PC game — with an Xbox 360 controller.

Another type of gaming was represented by Hard Knocks, the simulated combat sports arena located near UCR.

This is a new, innovative form of laser tag with a twist," said George Speese, a finance major at UCF. "Even though the cost is $35 an hour, the price seems undoubtedly worth it."

Anime fans were also among the patrons, displaying their love for Link, the main character from Zelda, and various characters from Kingdom Hearts and Final Fantasy. Some even created their own characters.

The creativity didn't stop there. Amid kaleidoscopic lights and fog machines, visitors got to jam on the Rock Band set. The set was synched to a real drum set, constructed by Robot Wars member, Buzz.

Staff members became breathless as 8- and 9-year-olds requested songs by bands such as Black Sabbath and Rush.

Of course Otronicon also made it possible for rockers to perform on the rooftop with Guitar Hero. Even though there wasn't a stage provided, there were ample guitars and guitars to go around.

The exchange of tips between parents and children electrified the area, with 5-year-olds dominating the game on expert level — look out, Slash.

Around the bend, through the plentiful assortment of timeless arcade games and beyond the historic product lines from Macintosh, one room was filled with 30-inch TVs connected to numerous Nintendo Wiis and stocked with the most recent releases.

Despite the delayed release of Super Smash Brothers Bros, people of all ages enjoyed the array of Wii Sports games. Fans lined around the Wii area, waiting in line for the opportunity to perfect their bowling game. Even young children were begging their parents to play the old-school arcade games, such as Frogger and Ms. Pacman, that were normally occupied by college students taking a break from homework.

For those who weren't into the physical aspect of gaming, there were many other avenues to dive into.

George Carlin, Bob Car Performing Arts Centre, 8 p.m. The Grammy-winning standup comedian will debut his 14th HBO special on March 11. Ticket information will be announced later.

Matt Nathanson, in-store performance at Park Ave. CDs, 6 p.m. Since his show tonight at The Social is already sold-out, see him play earlier in the evening.

Art Farm, Lake Eola, 10 a.m. If a showcase of local art, food and music is your thing, check out this event that lasts until 4 p.m. Free.

Movie Night, Drunken Monkey Coffee Bar, 7 p.m. Every Sunday night this coffee bar shows mostly independent films. This week it is showing Half Nelson. Free.
Kelly delivers catchy tunes, stays safe

AMANDA K. SHAPIRO

Josh Kelley fans have a new reason to celebrate: the former American Idol contestant and teen heartthrob is releasing his third studio album, The Tube, on Monday. Entitled after the hit ABC comedy of the same name, the album’s first four singles have already generated a buzz among fans, with the recent release of the video for “Hey Katie” garnering nearly 500,000 YouTube views in the past week. The album is a throwback to the 1980s with its light-hearted pop-rock sound and is sure to delight fans of the era’s music.

On Wednesday afternoon, set out on a campaign to find a few people to talk to who really appreciated the launch of the album. As part of the campaign, Kelley will also be performing live at several venues around the country, including a show at the Orlando Science Center this weekend.

Gossip Girl keeps viewers talking

JACKIE GILROY

Viewers were ready to throw in the towel for the sophomoric network. The CW but network President Dawn Ostroff stuck with a show based on the acclaimed New York Times-bestselling series by Cecily von Ziegesar, Gossip Girl.

Less than a month after its premiere on Sept. 10, Gossip Girl became the top teen series pickup of the 2007-2008 television season.

Developed by The O.C. creator Josh Schwartz and The O.C. producer Stephanie Savage, Gossip Girl centers around six young socialites of the Upper East Side of New York City.

Like the books, the show is focused on the infamous Gossip Girl (voiced by Kristen Bell), a diary who reports on the lives of the elite. The series is narrated by the infamous Gossip Girl, who reports on the lives of the elite, waiting to catch a glimpse of one of the elite inner circle.

The show deals with the love-hate relationship between the two girls and their peers. Mixed into the drama are Dan Humphrey (Penn Badgley) and Jenny Humphrey (Taylor Momsen), who breaks into elite private schools—St. Jude's and Constance Billard, respectively, on scholarship.

It turns out that Serena and Blair's boyfriend, Nate Archibald (Chace Crawford), had an affair before she left. To top it off, Blair, an insecure, manipulative bitch, feels over-shadowed by her best friend; everyone loves Serena, including Taylor's best friend and Blair's mother.

The show also deals with the love-hate relationship between the two girls and their peers. Mixed into the drama are Dan Humphrey (Penn Badgley) and Jenny Humphrey (Taylor Momsen), who breaks into elite private schools—St. Jude's and Constance Billard, respectively, on scholarship.
