The Florida Student Association held a board and general meeting Saturday to exchange thoughts about the possible change of the Bright Futures scholarship and other issues that affect Florida students and their colleges.

At the meeting, FSA discussed internal issues of their organization, the election processes on campuses and legislative issues.

The organization of student leaders from every college in Florida includes Brandi Hollinger and the student body president of the University of Florida, Ryan Mosley. Mosley is also the chairman of FSA.

"It is a good experience for students because you get to see what other campuses are doing," Hollinger said. "What a lot of students take from FSA is the exchange of ideas with other campuses to make student government and lobbying for students more effective.

The meeting began with Mosley going over what would be discussed as well as what had been discussed the day before in a meeting about the Bright Futures scholarship.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. —

Thousands of stunned students gathered silently Thursday on a quad at the University of North Carolina to mourn their student body president, just for as low as $.5 an issue!

The Associated Press.

"We have lost someone whom we cherish and love. University Chancellor James Moeser told a massive crowd on the school's Pogue Place quad, "We're all in a state of shock."

Police found Carson's vehicle, a blue 2005 Toyota Highlander with Georgia plates, after receiving a tip Thursday afternoon from a witness who spotted it near Franklin Street, the main drag through the popular college town, about 45 minutes west of Raleigh.

"We saw it on the news and we heard the woman is the president of the student body, and we were shocked," said_____.

Kevin Gunter, spokesman for the Chapel Hill Police Department, declined to comment when asked if police had found the car. Authorities planned to provide an update later Thursday on the status of their investigation.

Officers found the body of a young woman about a mile from campus, on the street at the intersection of Helms Road and Hillcrest Circle, after neighbors reported hearing shots about 5 a.m. Wednesday. Moeser said he got a call about a half hour later informing him that Carson was the apparent victim.

"I sat down and said 'Oh my God. I can't believe this.'" he said.

"Police positively identified the shooting victim as Carson on Thursday, and police Chief Brian Curran said her death appeared to be a random act.

"There is nothing to link this to anyone on this campus," Moeser said.

The pro tem of the Florida Legislature proposed a bill that could potentially undermine the state education system is handled in the state of Florida.

Sen. Lisa Carlton introduced Senate Bill 2308, which proposed that the Florida Constitution be amended to allow the Florida Legislature to take the majority of the decisions concerning education in the state of Florida. Out of those decisions would solve the current argument over who should control education at Florida public universities.

The change would reduce the state University Board of Governors and strip the remaining members of much of their power. Currently, the board has 14 members appointed by the governor, and each member serves a four-year term. Carlton proposed that the board be reduced to six members, with four-year-term members. Instead of 13 members, the bill also proposed to appoint 11 members.

A position for a commissioner of education would also be created in the governor's cabinet. The commissioner would supervise and manage the public education system. Everyone is happy with the proposed legislation.

The UCF Faculty Senate took action following the actions of the Advisory Council of Faculty Senators, which comprises all the plans the Florida State University Faculty Senate. The APC's passed a resolution regarding the legislation over the phone on Monday. The resolution states that no one inside the system or anyone who requests that our legislative representatives consider voting against or temporarily postponing the bill.

Senator Bill 2308 in a nutshell:

The Florida legislature, currently working in tandem with the Board of Governors, has a proposed policy that would give the state the power to make major changes to the Florida State University System. The proposed policy would give the Board of Governors the ability to make major changes to the Florida State University System.

TV may influence girls' career choices

Activists tell of 'girly' feminism

For girls, telling them to do something because they are girls is 'girly', according to author and activist Baumgardner. "When girls are forced to do something because they are girls, that is 'girly' feminism."

Baumgardner was an author and activist to speak at a recent Women's History Month event at the University of Central Florida. She talked about the importance of feminism today and how it can benefit girls and women alike.

Baumgardner noted that, "When girls are forced to do something because they are girls, that is 'girly' feminism."

She added, "I think the biggest challenge for girls today is being true to themselves. Girls need to learn that they can be both feminine and strong."

According to Baumgardner, "Girls need to learn that they can be both feminine and strong."

She concluded, "I think it's important for girls to know that they can be both feminine and strong. This is 'girly' feminism."

Baumgardner's talk was part of a larger event that included other speakers and workshops. The event was organized by the UCF's Department of Women's and Gender Studies.

The event was well-attended, with hundreds of students, faculty, and community members in attendance. Baumgardner's talk was particularly well-received, and she received a standing ovation at the end of her presentation.

Overall, Baumgardner's talk was a powerful reminder of the importance of feminism today and how it can benefit girls and women alike. Her message resonated with the audience, and many left inspired to continue the fight for gender equality.

Late 3-pointer keeps UCF comeback at bay

Houston possession, he was deciding when it would have its team foul. But Houston guard Marcus Molina didn’t help Spurrier have a chance to foul him as he called a long 3-pointer for him. He split the free throws, and the Cougars essentially and finally got the lead. Spurrier said in a postgame radio interview: “It was an NBA 3. He got open that much. I don’t know, I was thankful that he was shooting it, so we could get the last possession and it’s the only shot he makes from 3 all game.”

Molina was just 2-of-6 from the floor and 0-of-3 from 3-point range. The Knights were able to keep the game close for most of the first half, although they didn’t pull away. UCF seemed to have the lead and momentum heading into the second half, but he didn’t know why.

“Dave Noel did an unbelievable job at Houston, and he did a tremendous job of guarding him and making it very tough for him,” Houston coach Kelvin Sampson said in the postgame radio interview. “He just did a tremendous job of guarding him and making it very tough for him.”

Heading into their game, the Cougars (11-3 in Conference USA) were 6-of-21 shots, including 2-of-11 on his 3-pointers, and Spurrier didn’t know why.

“He was very, very force, and he was a very, very strong player,” Houston guard Shane Southwick said in the radio interview. “I think he was a very, very strong player.”

The two players perhaps defined the game in three ways.

Taylor and Houston’s Robert Jones, who rang up 18 points, had four 3-pointers in the game. The pair was on the court for 24 minutes.

Taylor was left from the floor in the first half, although he ended up with 16 points. The second. He made just 6-of-18 shots, including 2-of-11 on his 3-pointers, and Spurrier didn’t know why.

UCF alumnus Chris Campbell's business is to keep art unique by painting on shoes instead of canvas. Campbell said before he started his company, Diversitile, he was always trying to find a way to express his art in different ways. His search for an alternative outlet of expression eventually led him to painting on sneakers.

"With these shoes, you can wear your ideas and the artwork we create," Campbell said. "Just like a painting that you can take with you."

Campbell started his custom clothing business a year and three months ago, when he decided to team up with artists Richard Gordon, Mark Thor and John Terramoccia.

Since then, Diversitile has customized shoes for WiLD 98.7's DJ Orlando, Rhea of LRG's Luxirie clothing line and a German rapper named Kino.

Diversitile's work has also made its way into boutiques such as Culture Kings in Orlando and The Remix in Rockledge.

Currently, the majority of Campbell's clients come from Diversitile's MySpace page. Diversitile.com is scheduled to launch today.

Campbell wears a white wristband that reads "heart" on one side with the Nike symbol on the other. "They say wear your heart on your sleeve; I wear it on my wrist," Campbell said. "The Nike symbol is kind of a coincidence."

Campbell said that the wristband reminds him of lessons he's learned from his business mentors.

"You have to have a dream to accomplish what you want to accomplish," Campbell said. "My dream is in my heart."

While creating his art, Campbell said he thinks of the colors and designs more than the way a piece of clothing fits someone's body.

His favorite shoes are his personal Tupac Makavelis. The shoe's black-panther design consists of bronze, baby blue, dark blue, black and white.

"They're really clean," Campbell said. "I did one shoe three months before the other one, but they still came out pretty good."

Campbell picked Makavelis because there were no panels on the shoes. That gave him free reign to do whatever he wanted with them.

"I was like, Wow - a canvas," Campbell said.

Color has always been important to Campbell, from his early art...
Students stock up on Spring Break fashions

PATRICIA WESSEL

That time of year has finally come. That’s right, Spring Break is upon us, it is a time to live it up either at the beach, on the ski slopes or in bed until noon.

The sad part, for many of us, is that our first year of a week-long Spring Break are wrapped. Our days in the sun will one day be substituted with careers and other things that will leave us reminiscing about how good the old times were. But, as long as we still have it, why not make Spring Break fashionable?

Once again, we are brought to another benefit of being from Florida. We live where people vacation. Along with that comes something that is much more fabulous; that is the wardrobe of many of the tourists. From tropical-patterned button-down shirts, flashy packs and funky shorts, they are easy to spot. Hopefully the button-downs of OCF will not fall prey to the evils that plague people from the rest of the world.

Although senior communications student and model Brittany Davis will be venturing quite a distance from the place she calls home, she will still be keeping things stylish. "I’m going to New York, so I am going to be wearing winter clothes instead of summer clothes," she said.

If she was in Florida, she said, she would definitely stay true to the shorts and flip flops of the spring wardrobe.

After Nolan, a communicative disorders major, plans to stay in Orlando, she may not be traveling as far as Brittany. But she’s prepared for her plans to hit the amusement parks and the beach. Her most important accessory is sunglasses—probably overstated and hip.

Junior Cara Wilson is looking to hit West Key Spring Break. She says "cute flippy hats" are what she will be wanting to keep her beach fashion fab. Wilson said that she had not been able to pick up a few other staples that will help her vacation in stylo. "These suits are definitely on her list.

Spring Break is a great time to relax and recuperate after midterm stress, so show off that green tan with the perfect outfit and kick back like this is your last year. Remember, the best part of the outfit is the wardrobe. Spring Break is being able to look back on the pictures years later and reminiscence without thinking, “what was I wearing?”

St. Patrick’s Day get-togethers have officially been saved. Flogging Molly’s new album, Float, has been released just in time for the festivities, promising to bring a new dose of Irish-bred punk rock to a record store near you. Float is the fourth studio release for the Los Angeles natives and has already prized as one of this year’s best albums.

The music appearing on the album is a combination of hard driving rock and mellow acoustic tunes. It is a mixture that the band has been known to be masters of in the past.

One of Flogging Molly’s attributes that helps a listener pinpoint their sound comes from diverse instrumentations. In addition to the traditional band members, the band incorporates accordion, concertina, mandolin, banjo and bouzouki into its music for a sound that is uniquely its own. Their consistent ability to grab audience members during live shows is only half of the glory that makes the musicians so popular. Float brings back old and new songs, bringing back "Float," "Requires for a Dry Legs Song" and "Between a Man and a Woman." If you’re looking to preview the album before you purchase it, be sure to check out our each song’s Daddy’s Lament" and "Of the Least Goods." The two songs represent the juxtaposition of metallic lyrics that appear most on the release. The "Daddy’s So Far" takes things down a bit with a more melodic finish to the album. Fans of Dropkick Murphys and The Pogues should check out Float.

Flogging Molly will be playing tonight at House of Blues as part of their Green 5 tour with support from The Reverend Peyton’s Big Damn Band and Cheeky Cuties. Tickets are $29 for general admission. Student tickets may only be available at the box office since it is the day of the show. For more information on the band and their current tour, check out www.floggingmolly.com.

Bank Job does heist right; Games creates victims

ILLUSTRATION BY KELLY FLEET

The Bank Job
DIRECTOR: Roger Donaldson
STARS: Jason Statham, Sofía Vergara, Tim Roth, Rosamund Pike, Emily Blunt

Inspired by the true-life Lloyds Bank robbery of 1971, this heist thriller stars Statham as Terry Leather, a corrupt copper set to go after safety deposit boxes that contain not only much wealth but also evidence against him and his gang pals. A heist for some bank heist fans, but what's inside is captured by what's on both sides of the lens today.

Miss Pettigrew Lives for a Day
DIRECTOR: Bharat Nalluri
STARS: Frances McDormand, Ian McShane, Kristin Scott Thomas, Prasanna Trivedi

While not as extreme as the previous one, Miss Pettigrew Lives for a Day is a charming showcase in what happens when you give two fine sexual anecdotes, complete with the host ofanja and inadvertently becomes an extremely well-endowed remainder boasts some admitted- ly gorgeous vistas and sets, they can stick their skis on. And that, of course, threatens to give you down for a 90-minute screeners of extreme skidding footage, interrupted by the occasional knocking head. Then do we have a movie for you! Mark Boorman's documentary boasts some admittably risqué views and violently stylized dialogues. But the adrenaline junkies showcased can only come up with so many words to describe the ultimate thrill of bounding down the steepest sides of whichever mountains they can stick their skin on. "Incendiary" opens at the Royal Water Park Village 20 today.

Comedian delivers laughs

MIRANDA HAYES

It's not very often that I find myself laughing out loud for an extended period of time. In the case of the new memoir that sex columnist Michael Ian Black recently released, Handler does not apologize for her intimate, funny, and equally effortless talents.

"I realize that there's more to Handler's books are aadolend, style and the host

Adventures that left her running, ignoring the hills. What makes the book every entertaining? Covering sex and literature, Handler also has a new book out titled Are You There, Vodka? It's Me, Chelsea. This memoir is another chapter of her life.

Handler's books are a great read to bring on an airplane or the beach during Spring Break.
