Woman assaulted near UCF campus

Sheriff's Office releases sketch of suspect

Natalie Moreira

A woman was allegedly attacked, battered and sexually assaulted on Alafaya Trail, according to the Orange County Sheriff's Office. The woman requested confidentiality, so her name and owner statement were not released.

The woman was walking near Addison Place apartments around 5 p.m. on March 8, when she said she noticed a white male walking toward her. The man passed her and then grabbed her by the arm pulling her about 15 to 20 feet into the woods, according to the incident report. Once in the woods, a struggle ensued. As she attempted to release herself from the man, the woman was punched in the area of her left eye. The punch caused her to fall onto her back. While she was on the floor, the man began "fondling her breasts over her clothes," according to the incident report.

According to the report, the suspect is described as a white male, 5-feet 11 inches tall, weighing 180 pounds, with a medium build, short dark brown hair and blue eyes.

A man who pretended to be a CEO to claim a huge gift box in pink was also reported Wednesday.

Residents warily watched as rivers continued to rise Thursday from heavy rains that dumped as much as a foot of rain in the Midwest and left behind

Authorities say the man shot by Orlando drug-enforcement officers has died and now the officers are being questioned. Orlando Police Chief John Hitt said Orlando drug-enforcement officers were acting within the bounds of the Florida Statutes by charging the fee. Hitt also said the Florida Board of Governors, which oversees the state university system, had authorized the fee.

HUGHES, A sophomore engineering student, was diagnosed with leukemia at the end of February. He has to undergo chemotherapy, which sometimes leaves him feeling weak. Hughes is able to continue his classes and keep up with his social life now. The site is full of photos of Hughes and his friends and family. People just seem upbeat and happy all the time when they see him in person. Hughes' blog has also attracted national attention. "If you're going to wake up healthy one day and be forced to go to bed in a hospital for the rest of your life," said Hughes, "you better learn to deal with it."

Hughes is back on his feet and is thankful for the support he has received. "I feel like he'd be able to handle whatever the future brings," said Hughes. "It's really tough right now, but honestly, having cancer is the best thing that has ever happened to him."

Hughes said that he hopes to continue his career in engineering and make a difference in the world. "That's what really motivates me."

Hughes is scheduled to graduate from UCF by this time next year. He is looking forward to returning to his hometown, Orlando, and taking care of his family. "I feel like he'll be able to handle whatever the future brings."
Obama camp: Splitting Michigan delegates is fair

HEIDI PICKER

WASHINGTON — Barack Obama's campaign said Thursday that evenly splitting Michigan's delegates with rival Hillary Clinton would be a fair way to distribute them, as it would have to struggle.
Heavily clouded skies and gusty winds brought travelers to a standstill as they tried to get through the airport. In the past, gusty winds have been common, causing delays and cancellations.

What’s in the news at colleges around the world? See what’s in the news at your college?

Table may rise for college students on the 10-year plan

On the day plan in college? Well, some members of the Legislature say you should grow up and get a job.

Call the Van Winkle amendment.

The House Higher Education Committee approved a measure that will make it a lot more expensive if you’re just sitting around because Tuesday’s “Thursday” class started and fair parties finished.

Any student with 100 percent or more of the credit hours they need to complete their degrees would be charged 50 percent more in tuition for additional credit hours under an amendment sponsored by Sen. Lee Constance.

“[If] somebody is showing 180 hours over what they need and therefore taking up a seat, the Van Wickers of the world,” Malvino says. “I think it’s time for them to pay a little more interest.”

Constance, R-Arkan­ساس, said it “appropriately, finished college pretty quickly, graduating from the University of Cen­tral Florida at 22, and with hopes of returning to refer.”

Now, you can see what’s in the news at colleges around the world. See what’s in the news at your college.

Greater Orlando field airport was shuttered down because of rat problem

ORLANDO -- An Orlando International Airport spokesman says airport authorities are investigating reports that fumes from rats found Friday that was shut down because of a rat problem.

Airport authorities say they closed the airport for about two weekends after dead rodents started creating a much less unpleasant odor and sent them into the air.

Exterminators poisoned the rodents, but the smell lingered huddling in the building.

walk or jog with a friend. Avoid jogging after dark. If you must, stay in well-lit areas, avoid running between bushes and buildings and away from alleys and bushes.

Don’t fight back if your purse or wallet is snatched. Turn it over to the thief rather than risk personal injury, and call the police immediately.

Be careful about where and when you patronize Automated Toll Machines (ATM).

Accessing ATM cash in remote locations, particularly at night, could expose you to risk of robbery and personal injury.

Avoid working or studying alone in a public-access building at night.

According to Emert, a sign has been placed next to the Visual Arts parking lot to warn students about potential tickets they may receive for passing students without any apparent reason.

Sheriff's Office spokesman according to Emert, a sign has been placed next to the Visual Arts parking lot to warn students about potential tickets they may receive for passing students without any apparent reason.

Emert: Signs could be solution

Emert is looking for her alleged attacker, so she described it as a white male between the ages of 40 and 45 weighing about 220 pounds. The man is described as being 6 feet tall with a distinct receding hair line.

The incident happened during Spring Break and it remains unclear if a crime report was done.

The Sheriff's Office is still looking for her alleged attacker.

Emert believes that UCF should find a better solution to the problem.

Emert said they are working with UCF to create a solution that both sides are happy with.

Emert suggested that posting signs forbidding students to drop off or pick up people by car along the streets would be a good start.

Emert said a sign has been installed next to the Visual Arts parking lot.

"Putting up signs would be a good compromise," McPhee said. "This way, we know we’re doing something wrong before we get a ticket."

We scream for our team to win each and every game, no matter the score. We stand and appreciate the sport in which athletes go out to learn how to win.

In the most violent, glaring way, it's a team that has seen more than its share of injury and sacrifice from us — we are excited by the idea of another thrilling, dominant win.

lead back to the Seahawks. Wagner threatened to score a lot of runs, but put up just one run after the third inning. They left 13 runners on base. Meanwhile, UCF's hitters scored in each of the final six innings.

Matt Goodyear won his first collegiate start, defeating Wagner's top pitcher, Joe Testa. Goodyear allowed one earned run, three hits and three walks in four innings of work. Ryan Giglio was sold in relief with six strikeouts over three innings.

Another Knight earned his first collegiate win the night before, Caleb Graham pitched five scoreless innings during Tuesday's victory, allowing three hits and striking out six. Graham has gotten better with each start, saying, "Last night was a little starter, where he allowed five runs in 2.1 innings to拱包placate the crowd in the final moments of the Knight's loss of the season."

There was a little "transition period," Graham said. "There were some questions coming back to the clubhouse."

UCF's coaches, including coach Craig Conley, also picked up two RBIs on two hits and a run scored in the win.

"We've accomplished what we wanted to accomplish in the first 20 games," Cozart said. "We've been able to just get our pieces in places and see who can do what for us. Now we're prepped and ready to roll into the conference races."

Bank vault bar has all that jazz

CHRISTINE MULLEN

Below the chaotic streets of downtown Orlando is a bar that has been around for a long time and is a favorite of many locals. Tanqueray's, on the corner of Pine Street and Orange Avenue, has a rich musical history. Officially opened as a bar in 1998, it has yet to close its doors despite changing names or images. The bar, originally called the Fifth Avenue Jewel, was the site of a popular jazz club that had occupied the space under the vault when it opened in 1999.

"The bar is easy to miss among the busy signs illuminating the night streets, distracting those who don't want to go inside," said Tyler Shutter, a regular at the bar. "Down the stairs, past a vibrant abstract wall mural that fades into a neon sign on the wall, you step into a diverse crowd from college students to downtown workers. The smoke-filled bar greets its salon feel by step­ping food service to make sure patrons would be able to enjoy their cigarettes.

In addition to the captivating mood of jazz musicians in the back of the divided room, an intimate stage looks on at the other side of the divided wooden tables and chairs. A low-key bar has gone too far to hear your friends over the din, into the tiny school redphotobooth and onto the joined candles in a little. In the corner of the bar is a cozy hideaway for a small gathering furnished with redwood paneling to create a larger table that is complemented by a smaller table and chairs.

Hanging above the seating area in a white frame is a mural depicting the exact location where the bar is located. When a string string stop on a piano, the picture illustrates the popularity of the bar and sparks back to the early development of Orlando.

Numerous types of groups perform at the bar weekly. On Thursdays, a band plays live music and on Saturdays, a DJ spins records. The bar also has two video games in the corner.
